[CNE25] BONUS LAB Bosmuseum de Rips

On the edge of the Ripse forests, there is a hand-built forest museum in the open air. This wooden shelter, with theme panels, was built in an authentic way. Van Rips wood of course. By means of theme panels, the forest museum tells at a glance how the area changed from heathland to forest and how the village came into being. In old newspaper photos you can see that the reclamation, first with six oxen and later with enormous steam ploughs, was a mighty spectacle. The faces of hard-working forest workers who plant, cut and saw trees speak volumes. When you see the panel about the construction of the first roads, you immediately feel how remote this area was. Who were the founders, the forest rangers and the forest workers? What is the oldest house and how did the people and the forest fare during the war? The forest museum shows you all this.
