[CNE26] View of the Old Felt Factory

At Arnhemseweg 47–49 in Amersfoort, you'll find a unique ensemble that you could easily pass by – but if you stop for a moment, you'll see a story of craftsmanship, industry, and architecture.

This urban half-timbered villa with a workshop was designed in 1919 by architect C.G. Blanken. The building is constructed in a business-like style, enhanced with subtle brickwork. Originally built for a contractor, the complex took on a new function in 1928 when a felt factory was established there.

The house and adjacent workshop together form a rare and valuable combination. The ensemble is a tangible reminder of Amersfoort's industrial development after 1915 and therefore holds significant historical significance. The unique mix of residential and commercial spaces also gives the building a high degree of rarity.

The building is not only important from a cultural-historical perspective, but also holds special architectural and urban significance. It's a beautiful place to pause and reflect – and, of course, to find a cache.

The municipality of Amersfoort has given permission for this cache. Thank you for this.
