On Saturday, he devoured a piece of chocolate cake, an ice cream, a sour bomb, a slice of cheese, a piece of salami, a lollipop, a piece of cherry pie, a sausage, a cupcake, and a piece of melon. That evening, he had a stomach ache.

Do you also crave a delicious soft-serve ice cream on a hot day? But do you actually know what you're eating? Cow's milk gives it a creamy, smooth flavor. Adding cream creates a delicious, full-bodied taste. A little sugar for sweetness and a bit of air to make it soft and airy. And a touch of vanilla for a delicate flavor and a pleasant aroma. Put everything together in a cold ice cream maker, and you have a delicious soft-serve ice cream!

The sour bomb isn't for everyone. You either love or hate pickles. But did you know that a pickle is actually made from a cucumber? You can grow cucumbers in your garden. Farmers cultivate them in large quantities in greenhouses. To turn a cucumber into a pickle, you need water, vinegar, salt, and spices. The vinegar gives it the sour flavor. Herbs like dill and garlic make the pickle even more delicious. If you put all the ingredients in a jar, time will do the rest, and your cucumber will slowly transform into a sour pickle. If you don't like these sour gherkins, you might like those sour candies also called "sour bombs."

The Dutch are considered the cheeseheads of the world. But do they know how cheese is made? Without milk, there is no cheese. Milk usually comes from cows, but you can also make cheese with goat's milk or sheep's milk. Milk is the basis for cheese. Rennet thickens the milk. Acidity regulators are also added, which are beneficial bacteria that help turn milk into cheese and give it its flavor. By thickening the milk, chunks and moisture are created. By pressing the chunks together and adding salt, the cheese is created. Now it's time for resting and maturing, because that's how the cheese truly develops its delicious flavor.

While sucking on a sweet lollipop, you probably won't think about what's inside or how a lollipop is made. The main ingredient is sugar, which makes the lollipop sweet. Water is needed to melt the sugar. And then something else important: the flavorings that give the lollipop its strawberry, apple, or cola flavor. A little food coloring gives it its color and makes the lollipop look beautiful and cheerful. All the ingredients are heated and cooled until they become hard candy. If you let this cool on a stick, you create a lollipop.

The cherry pie is a sweet treat made with a delicious pie crust and a sweet cherry filling. The pie crust is made with a combination of four ingredients: flour, butter, sugar, and an egg. The filling is made of boiled cherries, sweetened with a little sugar. Just thinking about it is enough to make your mouth water, especially if this treat has just come out of the warm oven.
