[CNE26] The Parkweelde

Amersfoort is constantly evolving. This is clearly evident in the Kruiskamp neighborhood. Built in the 1920s and significantly expanded in the 1950s, it remained unchanged for a long time afterward. The neighborhood deteriorated over those decades. In March 2007, Ella Vogelaar, the then Minister of Housing, Neighborhoods, and Integration, placed the neighborhood on a list of forty neighborhoods in need of improvement. Extensive renovations were carried out, and the quality of life was improved. It has improved so much that it was the first neighborhood to be removed from the list in October 2012.

This small park had barely changed since the 1950s. In 2008, the park was thoroughly renovated. New playgrounds, a basketball court, a flower and sculpture garden, and much more were added. Separate rooms were chosen to create a more private atmosphere. This multi-purpose area runs through the flower and sculpture garden. Take a stroll and answer the questions along the way. There are plenty of benches to sit and relax while calculating. The cache is located a little further away, near a unique work of art. Have fun with this little multi.
